| Q1. Under application content and format, there are page length guidelines. Should these be interpreted as strict page limits for each section or just guidelines? If one section is shorter, can another be longer? | A1. The page lengths noted under Section VII are limitations. Sections should not exceed the limitations and can be less. Points can be added or reduced in any section for overall proper grammar usage and organization of the proposal. Any attachments must further demonstrate the applicant's capacity to fulfill the requirements for this project as described. Attachments will not count against the applicant's page limitations. |
| Q2. The salary limitation on page 19 discusses a salary limit of $189,600, but then a second limitation of $120,000. Is there a difference between these two limitations? If, for instance, an employee's annual salary is $130,000 and they are working 25% FTE on the grant, am I correct in interpreting that the most the grant could be charged is $30,000 for this individual? | A2. For this RFA the salary cap is $120,000. No more than $120,000 of an employee's salary can be charged to the grant. |
